Artspace gallery in the city's Manchester district recently opened "The Doodlists," a group show designed to raise awareness of the contribution of the doodle in creating art. It features work by 12 artists, most with a Richmond connection, including Dana Frostick, Susan Singer, Matt Lively, Duane Cregger and Henry Stindt.

Frostick, who said she has been making "elaborate doodles" since 2007, curated the show.

"We hope it's an inspiration to anybody who's ever doodled and been reprimanded," she said. "The truth is, fascinating things come out of the human unconscious."

The gallery is presenting a "Dueling Doodles" workshop with Frostick and Singer on Saturday from 1 to 2 p.m. It's also hosting a closing artists' talk May 17 (the final day of the show) at 2 p.m. Both are free and open to the public at 0 E. Fourth Street. Gallery hours are noon to 4 p.m. Tuesday-Sunday.
